Before You Start: How to Use This Book

A strong title is a promise; your video must deliver on it. Create curiosity to earn clicks, but never promise results your video doesn't provide.

The 300 titles in this book are ready-to-copy phrases. Replace the bracketed sections with your own topic to use them as templates. Even if a title is bold, if your opening scene and conclusion don't fulfill its promise, you'll lose both viewer retention and trust.

How to use:
Replace [audience], [problem], [result], and [number] with details from your actual video. Make sure your title matches your opening caption and conclusion.

Avoid:
Don't use fake numbers, impossible results, unrelated people or events, or excessive fear/sexual innuendo to trick viewers into clicking.

Official guidelines:
https://support.google.com/youtube/answer/57404?hl=en - Titles: up to 100 characters
https://support.google.com/youtube/answer/2801973?hl=en - Misleading metadata prohibited

A strong title quickly shows who, why, and what someone gains, while leaving one key question unanswered.

The Title Formula

Build your title from five elements:

Audience: Who is this for? [Beginners]

Conflict: What problem, difference, or choice? [Mistake/Comparison]

Specifics: Numbers, timeframes, tools, or situations [3 items, 7 days]

Gap: What blank does the viewer want to fill in? [Reason/Result]

Reward: What value will viewers get? [Save money/Change]

You don't need all five. Choose two or three that fit your video best.

Workshop: Picking the Right Title

Good titles aren't just flashes of inspiration-they come from options. Write 10 possible titles for your video, then narrow it down to the 3 that make the clearest promise. Compare those, and pick the 1 that matches your opening scene.

10 ideas: Mix different types to create candidates.

3 finalists: Compare audience, result, and curiosity.

1 test: Make sure your opening scene delivers on the promise.

Always answer the question your title creates before the end of your video.

Bracket Replacement Guide

Just swap the bracketed text to use these templates instantly.

[audience]
Beginners, office workers, small business owners, creators

[topic]
Shorts, fitness, cooking, gaming, personal finance

[problem]
Lack of time, low views, repeated mistakes

[result]
Time saved, completion, growth, change

[action]

[period]
10 minutes, 7 days, one month-use real timeframes

[A]/[B]
Free/paid, before/after, beginner/expert

[situation]
After work, before uploading, right after failure

3-second check after replacing:
- Is this actually in the video?
- Can viewers identify the audience in the opening scene?
- Does the conclusion answer the title's promise?
